The broaden-and-build-theory could be defined as a model for explaining the mechanisms behind positive emotions in our minds and bodies, what their effects are, what the evolutionary reason is behind them and why studying them is so important for our well-being.. Studying emotions has always been a challenge. There are different points of view as to what is considered an emotion.

"Theory of Mind" refers to the ability to attribute mental states to oneself and other people (Premack & Woodruff, 1978). This study examined the extent to which "Self" and "Other" belief-attribution processes within the Theory of Mind (ToM) mechanism could be distinguished behaviourally, and whether these separable components differentially related to Executive Functioning (EF ...

Labelling or labeling is describing someone or something in a word or short phrase. For example, describing someone who has broken a law as a criminal. Labelling theory is a theory in sociology which ascribes labelling of people to control and identification of deviant behaviour. It has been argued that labelling is necessary for communication. However, the use of the term is often intended to ...
